

What is a bird? If it has feathers, it is a bird.

Birds are many sizes, from the bumblebee hummingbird to the ostrich.

Fifty-plus different species have been seen in Grant, Nebraska, North America.

We live in the middle of the central flyway; a path of air used by birds to fly from summer and winter homes each week, starting next week.

If you see a strange, different bird, please report to 308-352-4428 and it will be reported to Cornell Lab of Ornithology, Audubon and Nebraska Ornithology Union (NOU).

There are 361 birds listed in Nebraska by the NOU.

“Birds 91” by Anna McDiffledorf