

The Nebraska Wind Conference Committee is encouraging early registration for the sixth Annual Nebraska Wind Conference Nov. 13-15 in Lincoln at the Cornhusker Marriott Hotel.

This year's theme is "Harvesting Nebraska's Potential."

"Last year's Nebraska Wind Conference sold out and we expect to do the same this year", said Adam Herink, co-chair of the conference.

Solar Sessions Added

The conference format will focus on Nebraska's competitive position for attraction of wind development.

The conference committee is co-chaired by Adam Herink of Bluestem Energy Solutions, LLC, John Hansen of the Nebraska Farmers Union, and Dan McGuire who facilitates for the National Renewable Energy Laboratory and Wind Powering America's "Wind for Schools" program in Nebraska.

"This conference is meant to bring Nebraskans together to discuss how we can keep "harvesting Nebraska's potential" including the development of solar energy. We believe that this conference is a great forum for bringing Nebraskans together to listen, share, and exchange ideas," said Herink.

For participant registration and sponsorship, go to www.NebraskaWindConference.com. To view last year's presentations, go to <http://www.neo.ne.gov/renew/wind-working-group/2012conference.htm>.