

Dear Editor:

The terrible tragedy in Arizona this weekend of a person elected, doing her job in good faith, was wounded by a person with a different ideas.

One spokesman said, "What is the matter with people—not only in Arizona but the United States, if they don't get what they want will go to some other extreme.—

It has been pretty evident in our county with a group that didn't get what they want, so they put a candidate on the ballot by petition. No one was interested enough to file on their own.

Is this the kind of country our forefathers planned?

Is this the country when men-women take oath to go into the service to honor, protect our country?

People better wake up and get back to honor and respect.

Gerry Pankonin

Grant