

Three baby birds tucked inside their nest, which is nestled deep in a hanging basket of flowers, are not at all concerned under the peering eye of five-year-old Griffen Schrotberger. The three little hatchlings are beginning to get feathers—a fourth egg remains in the nest. It has been typical for several years for a mother bird to build a nest somewhere on the outdoor plant patio at the Country Gardens Greenhouse on the north edge of Grant. (Photo by Jan Rahn)