

Madrid postal employees confirmed last week that a sink hole was recently discovered in the post office building. Brian Sperry, USPS spokesperson in Denver, explained that the USPS was working with the landlord of the building to get the situation resolved and there was no disruption of service for customers. (Photo by Tim Linscott)