

Jack Kennicutt, sixth grader at Perkins County Schools, has won the school level of the National Geographic Society's geography bee.

Classroom level questions prior to the school competition determine which students participate in the school level bee.

Other students in the final competition were Haven Bleavins, Jaden Dietlein, Nathan Kemling, Kyla Adams, Miles Lagler, Kole Kennicutt, Robinson Grothman, Mitchell Sestak and Sam Rowley.

Jack will take a written test to determine if he will advance to the state geography bee level. He is the son of Jerry and Dori Kennicutt.
