

Kriss Krutsinger led the construction class at Perkins County High School in moving a garage onto school property. On Sept. 10 the garage, which was on the property of Carlie Wells, athletic director at PCS, was prepared to be moved. On Sept. 12 the class, consisting of nine students, and the grounds crew at PCS, moved the garage north of the practice field at the high school. Wells donated the garage to the school and the class will rebuild a larger garage on his property, on Sherman Avenue, as part of a class project. Footings for the new garage were dug last week and cement will be poured next week. (Courtesy photo)
